The Division of Learning Innovation (LI) brings CSU's educational resources, programs and services to local communities across Colorado and beyond. An array of life-long learning opportunities is offered. This division includes CSU Online (<https://online.colostate.edu/>), Osher Lifelong Learning Institute (OLLI) (<https://osher.colostate.edu/>), and Professional & Continuing Education (<https://online.colostate.edu/certificates/professional-development-online.dot>).

CSU Online

CSU Online (<https://online.colostate.edu/>) is the distance-learning division of CSU in Fort Collins. It allows students globally to earn the same regionally accredited degrees and certificates as on-campus students, taught by the exact same faculty. The only difference between CSU and CSU Online is the setting. When you enroll in one of CSU's online programs, you are enrolled at CSU, a top-tier, regionally accredited institution. Online and on-campus students receive many of the same services. Online students also receive a diploma from CSU.

CSU Online collaborates closely with the departments across the university as well as government, business, and nonprofit organizations to foster a vibrant community that cares about learners, their experience, and their success. Visit the CSU Online website (<https://online.colostate.edu/>) to learn more about distance learning at CSU. Additional links are below:
